The crowd at the chautauqua this afternoon and tonight was expected to rival that of Tuesday when Helen Keller and the Welsh singers were here. The big attraction this afternoon was Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives.

He arrived here this morning and was entertained at noon at luncheon at the home of James E. Watson. About a dozen local men interested in politics were also guests, representing both the Democratic and Republican parties.

The chautauqua is gradually drawing to a close, there remaining only two more days after today. The Grace Hall-Riheldaffer company gave the prelude this afternoon and will appear again tonight in a prelude, which will conclude their engagement here. The company gave a full concert Thursday night and was given a hearty reception. Many of the numbers called for one or more encores.

Much is expected of the Cathedral choir of eight voices which will come Saturday to remain throughout the rest of the chautauqua. The choir will give preludes, with the exception of Sunday night, when a full concert will be given.

The award of prizes in the baby contest Saturday afternoon at four o'clock will attract many persons. Saturday night Louis Williams, the electrical wizard, will be here. He will show the many applications of electricity.

Dr. N. McGee Waters, pastor of Tompkins Avenue Congregational church of Brooklyn, will be the speaker Sunday afternoon, following a prelude by the choir. He will be an exceptional treat, it is believed.

Congressman James L. Slayden of Texas, who spoke at the chautauqua Thursday afternoon on Mexican affairs, claimed credit for the plan which was put into execution Thursday evening at Washington when the six ranking Latin-American diplomats in Washington conferred with Secretary of State Lansing regarding the pacification of Mexico and agreed that the factions in Mexico should be given one

Washington, Aug. 6.—Colonel Cole, marine commandant on the Connecticut has been placed by Admiral Caperton in military control at Port Au Prince, Charge Davis notified the state department today. BOYS LECTURED BY MAYOR BEBOUT

Promised to Pay For the Lights That Were Broken and Were Given Freedom.

ONE ARREST MAY BE MADE

After lecturing the crowd of boys for breaking the lights at the chautauqua grounds, Mayor Bebout gave them their freedom. This was true with one exception and an arrest may be expected in this case.

The boys were told to get their tents out of the city park and all agreed to pay for the lights that were broken. About twenty boys were rounded up by the police and brought before the mayor Thursday afternoon. By questioning the boys Mayor Bebout found out who shot out the lights and they were told that a similar occurrence would surely mean a trip to the boys' school at Plainfield. It was intimated today that an arrest would be made for the breaking of the street light outside of the chautauqua grounds.

SPECULATING ON NEXT GERMAN MOVE

Military Critics Wonder Whether Kaiser Will March Down Alps Into Northern Italy.

MAY START TO PARIS AGAIN

By E. L. KEEN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)
London, August 6.—British critics conceded today that the fall of Warsaw will have a tremendous influence on the next six months' fighting in Europe and possibly on the political fortunes of the allies. Capture of Warsaw will release at least 1,000,000 Austro-Germans for operations elsewhere. The military critics turned their attention today to speculating what the next move of Germany would be.

A popular guess was that the Germans would renew the offensive against Paris at once or hurl all of the available forces against Anglo-French lines, to reach Calais. Other critics suggested that the kaiser will now join Austria in a determined attempt to march down the Alps into northern Italy or completely crush Serbia.

The Petrograd reports that the Russian armies have escaped from the German trap is accepted as true in military circles here where it is assumed that the German campaign in Poland is now about to close. In some quarters, however, it is believed Von Hindenberg may attempt an advance against Petrograd or along the Odessa railway, though this view is now shared by the majority of the London critics.

MANY VISIT THE PURDUE HOG CAR

Hear Lectures by Drs. Starr and Kigin, Formerly of this City and See Exhibits.

CO-OPERATION IS KEYNOTE

Only Working Together With Extension Department, Can Farmers Stamp Out Cholera.

Accompanied by Dr. Chester G. Starr and Dr. L. C. Kigin, who was formerly a veterinarian here, the Purdue hog special was on a siding at the Pennsylvania station today. The car was open all morning and closed at one o'clock so as not to interfere with the chautauqua. The car came here from Manila, where it was stationed all day Thursday, and will go from there to Falmouth, where it will stop Saturday.

Drs. Starr and Kigin accompany the cars as lecturers. From time to time during the morning they made short talks to the farmers and stockmen who gathered to see the demonstrations and exhibits and when the lectures were not in progress the visitors inspected the car thoroughly and read some of the literature which was passed out. There were two cars, one a regular passenger coach where the lectures were held, in addition to the car containing the exhibits.

All kinds of pictures of sanitary hog houses and feeding pens were shown. Management of the hog in general from the time he is a pig until he tips the scales at 200 pounds was discussed by Mr. Starr and the associate lecturer who was with him. Hog cholera, of course, came in for the greater part of the discussion. For this disease clean lots and vaccination was urged where the hogs are well before the serum is given. When the hogs once have the disease in a virulent form there is no hope for them, it was said, and they might just as well be killed and burned. Worms and lice and sore mouths in pigs came in also for a part in the discussion of hog management.

Here are some vital points in the treatment and management of hogs: For thumps in pigs give epsom salts. This can be worked into the slops and piggy will never think anything about it more than that the slop is a little off in quality. For worms in hogs give three to five grains of san-tonin and five to eight grains of calomel to each one hundred pounds of live weight.

It was explained that the supposition has been that sows would not permit many young pigs to nurse because they had sharp teeth and it has been an extensive practice to pull these teeth. The Purdue lecturer explained that the trouble was really due to sore mouths in pigs and this prevented them from nursing normally, with the result that their mothers would not permit it at all. The treatment for sore mouth in pigs was said to be the use of permanganate of potash. For the extermination of lice nothing is better it was said than the use of pure crude oil as it comes from the wells. For cholera, the only effective treatment is the preventative use of serums in proper time and manner.

Mr. Starr stated he was trying while on this trip to emphasize disease control. He suggested that there is no use to raise more hogs if they are to keep on dying as they have been during the past few years. He talked scientific feeding as a means of keeping the hogs in a higher state of health and insisted on the eradication of worms and lice, which lower the vitality of the

USE OF ALCOHOL IS CONDEMNED

Dr. Geisel Tells Teachers That it Has no Food Value Whatever, Institute Closes

IS DESTROYER OF NERVE CELL

Pass Resolutions Thanking Speakers And Urge Teachers to Oppose Tobacco Habit

The Rush County Teachers' Institute closed at noon today after one of the most successful sessions in recent years. Another large crowd was in attendance at the closing session. The resolutions as prepared by the committee composed of J. H. Scholl, W. O. Fox and W. E. Wagoner, were adopted as read.

The resolutions show that the teachers are in hearty accord with Dr. Carolyn Geisel in her stand against the use of tobacco by school teachers and pupils. This practice was condemned by the committee. The resolutions also expressed the appreciation of the institute to the speakers of the week for their excellent work. It was again urged that the institute be held in connection with the chautauqua and this will more than likely be followed again next year. Efforts in the past to change the time and place for holding the institute have failed and no effort was made to do so this year.

Dr. Geisel this morning urged the teachers to put forth a greater effort to make the children understand that alcohol has no food value and along with nicotine was a food destroyer. She illustrated how the nerve cells were destroyed by alcohol and showed how the use of alcohol tended to tear down the system rather than build it up.

She again urged the teachers against the use of tobacco and pointed out that children in the school room could not do as efficient work by using tobacco. Dr. Geisel stated that she hoped the teachers would go forth from the institute red with the thought that to make a better race alcohol and the cigarette must be put out of existence.

"I want you teachers," said Dr. Geisel, "to impress on the child that alcohol taken even in small doses has no food value." She described the effect of alcohol on the nervous system and told how the constant use of it soon broke the will power of the user to such an extent that the use could not be stopped. She gave statistics to show the effects of alcohol on the human body. She stated that forty out of every hundred cases of apoplexy were caused by the excessive use of alcohol. The place to start teaching inefficiency caused by alcohol is in the school room, she stated.

Statistics were given showing that students in Amherst and Yale that did not smoke tobacco in any form weighed twenty-four per cent more than those who did. The non-smokers in these two great colleges, she said, were twenty-seven per cent taller; had forty per cent more chest expansion and had seventy-two per cent more lung capacity. "The use of tobacco," said Dr. Geisel, "shrinks in everything, as is shown by these figures, and even shrinks in brain capacity."

In closing Dr. Geisel urged the teachers to start work for a better race by proper training of the children as the school room, she declared is the proper place to start. The resolutions adopted by the institute are as follows:

The Rush County Teachers' Institute through its committee offers

DEFINITELY AGREE ON A SET PROGRAM

Secretary Lansing and Latin-American Diplomats Will Propose a Peace Conference.

MAY RECOGNIZE CARRANZA

BY CHARLES P. STEWART.
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, August 6.—Secretary Lansing and the Latin-American diplomats have definitely agreed upon a program to restore order in Mexico, it was believed today, and their conference will end today.

Secretary Lansing intimated that there might be another conference. It was admitted that he will have an extremely confidential talk with General Scott, chief of staff.

The first step probably will be to propose a peace conference between Carranza and Villa with General Scott as mediator. They may be led to agree within thirty or sixty days on a provisional president acceptable to all concerned. He would act until a regular election chooses his successor.

It was reported widely in official circles today and generally believed that the Latin-American conference on the Mexican situation are a unit on recognizing General Carranza if he will agree to call an election within a stated period and eliminate himself as a candidate for permanent president.

ARMAMENTS NOT A PREVENTATIVE

Dr. Stephen S. Wise Takes Issue With Old Theory in Address at Chautauqua Thursday.

"IS WAR CURELESS?" HE ASKS

Absence of Woman From Councils of State Largely Responsible For Continuance of Plague.

"The deepest cause of the war has been the faith that mighty ornaments alone could avert war, that the billions, not millions, which the military powers of Europe have spent in the last thirty years were the premium which these nations were paying for the insurance against war."

Thus did Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue, of New York, speaking on the subject, "Is War Causeless?" at the chautauqua Thursday afternoon, explode the theory that continued armament prevents war.

"Armaments, as is now seen," he declared, "are the guarantee of war's invariableness at any moment. As long as armaments are, men will resort to arms. We of this Western democracy together with our sister Republics of the Central and South America must dare become the pioneers in the interest of world-peace. Is no nation ever to make a great adventure in behalf of world-peace as many nations seem to be ready to hazard the adventure of world-war? Our opposition to war must become real and final and inflexible. The time must come when men will have to choose between killing and being killed. No government could constrain me to slay my child. If my country bids me slay my brother beyond the national frontier, I should say Nay, though the government slay me. The time has come when men must choose that they be slain for refusing to slay another rather than go forth to slay their brother at the behest of any government. The time to strike against war is not when war is but when peace is. War cannot cease until the power of any man or group of men to make or unmake was has ceased. When democracy comes to its own, the vicarious damnation, which is war in autocratic empire, will cease."

Rabbi Wise is the most popular speaker who has been on this year's program so far. He made a most impressive appeal. The crowd was the best one for the afternoon program, outside of Tuesday. Dr. Wise paid high tribute to Dr. N. McGee Waters, of Brooklyn, who speaks Sunday. The two men have exchanged pulpits on a number of occasions.

"Another cause of war is to be found in the unreality of moral and

HESSIAN FLY DANGEROUS.

The loss to the wheat crop this year from the Hessian fly has undoubtedly been severe in many sections. The habits of this destructive pest are well known and they indicate that unless precautions are taken now this loss will be repeated next year. There are two generations of the fly each year—one in the fall and one in the following spring, the second generation being off spring the former. To get rid of the pest next year, therefore, the fly should be destroyed this fall. This can be done by the simple process of starving out the fly. The following rules have been drawn up by agricultural authorities in Oklahoma and are applicable to all sections of the country:

1. Burn, where possible and safe, all stubble and ruined wheat.
2. Disk all stubble and ruined wheat immediately after harvest, when burning is impracticable.
3. Plow under deeply all stubble and ruined wheat fields before August 15, harrow the ground, and roll if necessary.
4. Harrow, disk, pasture, or otherwise effectually destroy all volunteer wheat.
5. As a measure preparatory to sowing, plow as early and deeply as existing conditions will permit; disk, harrow, and roll until a thoroughly pulverized, compact seed bed is obtained.
6. Do not sow wheat until after fly-free date.
7. Rotate your crops if possible.

The date when it is safe to sow wheat varies, of course, with the locality, and the farmer who is ready anxious to save his next year's wheat crop from the Hessian fly should ascertain this date from his State Agricultural College, or from the county demonstration agent, or by inquiry from the Department of Agriculture at Washington. If he neglects this precaution he not only runs the risk of serious loss himself, but may injure his neighbors as well. It should also be borne in mind that the most effective methods of fighting the Hessian fly are also the best methods for producing the yields of wheat. The danger in late sowing that the growth of the plants may not become sufficiently advanced to stand the winter is dealt with in Circular 51 of the Department of Agriculture. "The Hessian Fly Situation in 1915." This may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture.

Dots Have Given Stripes Hot Race In the Fashion League this Year

BY MARGARET MASON (Written for United Press.)

Dolly of the dairy And Bridget who peels spuds And Great of the garden And Susie of the suds Have all been emulated By Fashion in her duds.

New York, Aug. 6.—Madame La Mode has a perfect passion this summer for masquerading in rural raiment and adapting to her perverse purposes all the quaint and primitive sartorial devices of the peasantry. In reckless manner she has shown that one touch of bodice makes princess and peasant kin. In fact this comic opera girdle of laced black velvet may be said to have struck a note of equality by being half way of a peeress and also half way of a peasant with equally pleasing results. Not being confined to the upper, lower or middle classes exclusively it has confined the middle of all.

Many a last summers frock has been freshened up to 1915 standards by simply adding the peasant girdle or bodice with its cord or ribbon laces.

Then there is the popular smock like the gardener and Greta the gardener's girl wear when they go weeding, sowing and spading, to say nothing of the wide brimmed floppy garden hats of loose woven straw that Milady has snatched from their simple heads to perch on her own frivolous pate.

Copying everything in the apron line from the gay little inconsequential affair affected by the ladies maid and the femme de chambre up to the more durable models displayed by the kitchen queen and presiding goddess of the laundry tubs she has converted them by grace of sheer fabrics and thread-like laces into exquisite finishing touches on her smart summer frocks.

The filmy fichu shrouding her snowy bosom was inspired by the kerchief of the simple dairy maid and to such extremes is her penchant for all things primitive taking her that they have even effected her eating and sleeping. She insists on taking her food off the crude hand painted peasant wares of Brittany, Bulgaria or the Black Forest while her bed and table linen is of unbleached peasant weaves stunningly monogrammed. For after all she prides herself as really getting back to nature and being truly of the people in her present peasant modes and yet though she wears an apron it is ever of the finest lace and hand embroidered. If she cover her bed with unbleached muslin and drape her windows in cheesecloth and lay her table with coarse linen in natural shade they are all exquisitely stitched and embroidered and monogrammed in the height of art and artistry. Dame Fashion only plays at being primitive.

Patch pockets aren't the only patch on this seasons vagaries of apparel. Indeed the whole scheme of a successful toilette seems to be dpatchy. There and even four different materials and colors often go to make up a single frock and the more the merrier is the mode. The tiny silken jackets of a plain color worn over a bodice of striped material whose sleeves and front are of a transparent white or ecru chiffon with the striped skirt belted and banded with silk are the most prevalent phase of these versatile costumes. Some of them live up more closely to the patchwork idea by having a combination of dotted silk trimmed in striped organdie with plain transparent chiffon sleeves, a plain silken jacket effect and a belt and garnishments of beadwork. Patchwork seems a kindly term to designate some of these creations. To dub them simply a mess comes nearer to the verities.

It's been a neck and neck race all summer between the stripes and the dots. Zebra girls will soon be turning dotty, however, as stripes are more dashing and noticeable and therefore you tire of them more easily than of the more conservative little dot. Combining the stripes and the dots gives a result startlingly reminiscent of a "words and music" effect. To be sure this striking costume of note is a bit loud, but it strikes the right keynote of the moment and never is the least bit flat.

So don't doff your stripes to don dots—just try a little of both.

MANY VISIT THE PURDUE HOG CAR

Continued from Page 1. swine. Remedies for worms and dips for lice, all kinds of disinfectants, the use of spray pumps and the proper cleaning of lots and pens were discussed.

Mr. Starr suggested that ninety per cent of the hogs dying in Indiana last year were victims of cholera, the loss to the farmer being two and a half million dollars.

Only through co-operative work can the cholera be eliminated, is the belief of Mr. Starr, and he said it is the great purpose of the university at this time to get stock raisers to work to this end. Along this line the best results have been secured in Park county. Three years ago there were one hundred infected farms in the county at one time. Clubs and associations were formed for the prevention of the disease and as a direct result there were but two outbreaks in the county last year. In 1913, Gibson county lost $100,000 worth of hogs from the cholera. Last year through co-operative work the loss was reduced to $5,000. Excellent results have been reported from Wells and Randolph counties. This year the co-operative work is being started under the supervision of the university in Bartholomew, Greens, Posey, Madison and Benton counties.

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION

Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Montpelier, Vt. — "We have great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and sleepy all the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet would blot. My stomach bothered me, I had pain in my side and a bad headache most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me." — Mrs. MARY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.

An Honest Dependable Medicine It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

GERMAN TROOPS AGAIN ADVANCE

Break Through Russian Positions North of Warsaw and Advance Upon Narew.

WHOLE LINE IS SWEEP AWAY

(By United Press.)

Berlin, (By Way of London), August 6.—German troops have broken through the Russian positions and the fortress of Novo Georgievsk, north of Warsaw and are advancing upon the lower Narew.

The whole of the strongly fortified Russian line on the Vistula river is now swept away. Capture of Warsaw followed closely by the fall of Ivangorod and Novo Georgievsk, the two strongholds protecting the Polish capital completes the Austro-Germany victory in the Vistula fighting.

WARDEN OF JOLIET PRISON RESIGNS

Quits Position When Governor Refuses to Let Him Reside Outside of Walls.

DUNNE GIVES OUT STATEMENT

(By United Press.)

Springfield, Ill., August 6.—Warden Edmund M. Allen of Joliet prison resigned today and his resignation was accepted by Governor Dunne following the latter's refusal to grant Allen permission to reside outside the walls of the prison where his wife was murdered several months ago.

Hearing of a statement made by Allen in Chicago in connection with his resignation that "it would be hard for him to drop his honor system which had been his life's work," the governor made the following statement:

"The honor system is mine. In no sense of the word was it instituted by Mr. Allen. In my inaugural address, I specifically declared that the honor system should be instituted in the Illinois penitentiary."

The Christian Union church of Homer will give an ice cream social on the church lawn next Wednesday evening. The church will be open and special music will be provided.

(By United Press.)

Glveston, Texas, August 6.—Improved Mexico City conditions were reported in a Carranza consulate message from the capital today.

Gonzales was reported to have loaned merchants a half billion dollars for paying salaries; bread prices were sliced in two; meat was lowered with increasing supplied.

Gonzales also had ordered death for soldiers who used or took private property.

"BIG RUN" ANNIVERSARY

Lawton, Okla., Aug. 6.—The people of Lawton celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of the "Big Run." August 6, 1901 the Comanche, Kiowa and Apache reservations were thrown open to settlers. Drawings were held in El Reno and at Fort Sill and the winners poured pell mell into what was one of the richest pieces of territory ever distributed by the government to home seekers. In a single night Lawton sprang into being with a population of close to 7000 people.

GOVERNOR MOVIE FAN

Madison, Wis., Aug. 6.—Governor Philipp evidently acquired the "economy" habit by practicing it himself. He is the first governor that Wisconsin has had, as far as memory goes, who eats "off the arm of a chair" and likes the movies. The governor can be seen any day in one of Madison's lunch rooms calmly absorbing a bowl of "alfalfa" and munching crackers. And every night that he is not busy he is at a vaudeville show or watching Poor Pauline slide off a cliff.

The Missionary society of the Fairview church will give a poverty social next Wednesday night. A fine will be imposed on all who do not wear their old clothes.

New Man of Business.

For generations throughout the civilized world the farmer has been regarded simply as a farmer—nothing more.

He has been classed as a farmer, rated as a farmer, and treated as a farmer, and all because there are none so blind as those who will not see.

But, all of that is changed today. The farmer has come into his own, and stands before the world in the twentieth century as the most solid, substantial and reliable class of peoples on the face of the globe. He is a man of business—of tremendous business—the one man without whom the peoples of the world would cease to exist.

Men go out to great cities, and many of them rise, and fall, and are heard from no more.

But the farmer moves steadily onward, and upward, always to better and greater things.

He is our new man of business—our greatest man of business—the man upon whom all the world depends for the vital sustenance of life.

Marse Henry Watterson reckons that "the country will not be blinded—certainly the South will not be blinded—by the dazzling billion-dollar total" of this year's foreign trade balance. Quite right. The country knows by this time that our huge exports are made up of food products which are sent abroad to feed armies and peoples in countries where warfare has supplanted industry, and of war munitions which produce huge profits for a few manufacturers in a limited area of the country. The effect of all this is to increase the cost of living to Americans through a decreasing of the supply of food material available for home consumption, and to emphasize the general lack of prosperity in communities where war factories do not exist but where staple industries have been crippled by the folly of Democratic tariff legislation. Mr. Redfield will doubtless try to blind the country with "the dazzling billion-dollar total," but the country, like Marse Henry Watterson, has its eyes wide open.

Senator Kern of Indiana predicts that the Senate, at the next session, will adopt "a modified cloture." The Supreme Court's decision on the "grandfather laws" has knocked out cloture. The Court's ruling on the constitutional rights of negro citizens to vote, regardless of whether their grandfathers could vote in 1868, means the liberation of Congress to enact laws to protect the colored man at the polls. Congress is going to be Republican pretty soon—to wit, after March 4, 1917 and no Democratic Senator from the South is going to vote for cloture now. Cloture now may mean the passage of the Wilson-McAdoo shipping bill. Cloture two years from now means a Federal election law, and no Southern Bourbon will stand for that.

Mahoning Council, No. 36, D of P. will meet tonight and a large attendance is desired. A class of candidates will be initiated.

Don't complain of the shortness of life. You may sing a different tune later on.

Many a reputed wise head contains but little wisdom.

Cuss words are often better than the men who use them.

A vicious lie travels at express speed and stops at every station.

To bring a high polish to furniture, use plenty of elbow grease.

With some people, "to think is to act." And that's the trouble with them.

"I-Want-U" is coming to town. Watch this paper for announcement of arrival. 1131f

HOOSIER HISTORY

DIALECT AND GOOD ENGLISH.
(PREPARED FOR THE UNITED PRESS BY THE CENTENNIAL DEPARTMENT OF THE INDIANA HISTORICAL COMMISSION.)

The prevalence of the dialect among the uneducated classes was indeed, though indirectly, a ministry to the cause of good English. The educated few, fearing contamination of their children's speech through daily contact with the ignorant, were more than usually strict in exacting correct usage at the hands of their youngsters. I very well remember how grievously it afflicted my own young soul, I was forbidden under penalty, to say "chimbly" and "flanner" for chimney and flannel, to call inferior things "ornery" to use the compromise low—abbreviation of allow,—which very generally took the place of the Yankee "guess" and the southern "reckon" and above all to call tomatoes "tomatoes."—George Carey Eggleston in "Recollections of a varied life."

What Our Neighbors
Are Talking About

The Hoosier Highway.

(Marion News-Leader.)

The Hoosier-Dixie Highway movement is meeting with a popular endorsement that was only vaguely anticipated when the effort was inaugurated by the Marion Association of Commerce. The local commercial body saw the possibilities of a concerning link from both Cincinnati, Ohio, and Louisville, Ky., to the Lincoln Highway at Goshen, Ind., and went to work at once corresponding with commercial bodies in various counties relative to the matter. This correspondence resulted in the splendid meeting at Marion on the 14th of July and the subsequent meeting at Wabash on the 28th of July, at which a permanent organization was affected composed of Elkhart, Kosciusko, Wabash, Grant, and Madison counties.

The route as suggested through the counties named not only offers the shortest way from both of the Ohio river ends of the Dixie Highway at Cincinnati and Louisville, to Chicago and the resort regions of northern Indiana and western Michigan, but the road, almost the entire way, is already a serviceable, hard highway.

The object of the organization is not as some have thought, movement to build new roads and thus entail heavy expense upon various counties. The object of the movement is for the purpose of keeping serviceable the road already built and exploiting it as the most direct route from the Ohio river ends of the Dixie Highway to the Lincoln Highway at Goshen, and to Chicago. In addition to exploiting this route the Hoosier-Dixie Highway Association, with its headquarters in Marion, will have the road properly logged and marked so that it may be traveled either day or night with perfect assurance that the traveler is on the right road and the short route between the cities named. As a connecting link in the great Dixie Highway it is so fortunate in its geographical location that it is bound to become the popular route from the Ohio river northward.

But there are even greater possibilities in the effort of the Hoosier-Dixie Highway Association than those mentioned in the foregoing. The time is very near at hand when Indiana should have a general system of highway building that will give the taxpayers a dollar's worth of road, for every dollar invested in road building and thus saving the various counties the vast expense of experimenting in hard road building, each county building according to plans, which in many instances, are both impracticable and expensive.

There is however even a greater possibility for the Hoosier-Dixie Highway Association. It is a part of the plan of the Dixie Highway Association to ask for federal aid in building the great loop of this north and south thoroughfare.

By such an organization as that which has been perfected through the efforts of the Marion Association of Commerce the Hoosier-Dixie Highway Association, by making the highway serviceable, will be in a position to share in federal aid for road building when that kind of a system is inaugurated. Not only will it be in a position to share in federal aid, but the enhancement of values which must necessarily follow the inauguration of a permanent highway, such as is contemplated, will mean much to the section of the state through which it passes.

By inaugurating this movement the Marion Association of Commerce has not only started a constructive work that means better roads but a thoroughfare through the state at a much less cost than it could be acquired in any other way. The local association has started that co-operative work that will mean much to the people in the eastern part of the state and particularly the counties through which this highway will pass. In short the movement is a money saver in permanent highway construction and should meet the approval of every thoughtful man, and also command his support. It is up to all good citizens to attend the meetings of the association and give it their unqualified support for the movement means better roads and enhanced values at practically no extra cost to the taxpayers of the various counties.

WAR ODDITIES

London—Britain's popular war song, "Sister Susie's Sewing Shirts for Soldiers," has a new rival. It's "Cousin Clara's Cooking Cakes for Cossacks."

London—Latest London recruiting poster; "Cross Channel trips, spend your summer holidays on the Continent. Sea passage may be booked inside." The "inside" is a recruiting office.

Berlin—Every seventh son born in prominent German families in which the preceding six sons are alive is a "God Child" of the Kaiser. He has now 12,000.

Belfast—Hugh McCruden, a German Jew, member of a British regiment, supposedly intoxicated, cheered for the Kaiser and was arrested under the Defense of the Realm act.

London—Lord Kitchener has turned the park and gardens of his country home over to wounded soldiers who may roam and pick flowers "as much as they like" according to the warlord's orders.

Athens (By Mail)—That General Linman Von Sanders, commander-in-chief of the Turkish army, is in constant fear of assassination, goes about daily clad in armor that not only covers his body but his head, as the statement today of the Constantinople correspondent of an Athens paper.

The General's head "impedimenta" resembles somewhat the head armor of the Ancients and discloses no more of the commander's face than can be seen through thick glass goggles.

Despite all precautions, according to other advices, von Sanders was wounded. It was not stated whether he was hit when clad in his armor.

Petrograd, July 1 (BY Mail)—How two Russian airmen, forced to descend behind the German lines in the Nieman river region, outwitted the enemy with petticoats was a story today from the front.

The scene of their landing was a small Lithuanian village where they burned their disabled aeroplane and appealed to sympathetic peasant women to help them escape. The women gave up their skirts, blouses and even supplied the unfortunates with a kerchief apiece. Carrying market baskets, the airmen calmly walked through the enemy's lines until they reached the river. Here they drove into the stream, skirts and all, but in so doing revealed their true identity. A fusillade of bullets followed from the Germans but the aviators succeeded in reaching the Russian shore, bedraggled but safe.

London, July 20. (By Mail)—Thirty eight members of the crew of the British cargo steamer Caucasian torpedoed off the British coast, owe their lives to a diminutive Pomeranian dog.

The story was told today at headquarters of the National Canine Defense League where Captain Robinson of the Caucasian was awarded a silver medal for saving the life of the dog and consequently the crew. The Caucasian was torpedoed after a submarine had pursued the vessel an hour. While the crew were swarming into the boats Captain Robinson handed "Betty," his wife's ten months old Pomeranian dog to the second mate directing that the animal be placed in a lifeboat. The mate handed "Betty" to a member of the crew who accidentally dropped her overboard.

When the captain entered the boat he saw the little dog swimming toward the submarine. He immediately jumped into the water and swam about a quarter of a mile. When he reached the dog he placed it on his shoulder and was surprised to find that he was within a few yards of the submarine. The German officer of the craft, standing on deck, addressed him in imperfect English: "I had made up my mind to blow up your lifeboats because you did not stop your ship, but I will not do so as a reward for your brave swim to save your little dog."

Captain Robinson swam back to his lifeboat and the submarine proceeded on its search for other victims.

The crew were picked up by the British steamer Inglemoor but immediately were forced to take again to their own boats as the submarine returned and torpedoed the Inglemoor.

Captain Robinson, with his dog, and crew were finally rescued by another steamer and landed at Benzance.

PICTURE TELLS STORY.

London, June 30th (By Mail)—The tragic journey of a pendant, containing a girls picture and a lock of hair, from England to France and back again was told here today.

The day Private G. E. Milburn, a signaller in the Durhams, left his home for the front, Miss Besie Grey, his sweetheart hung the pendant about his neck and kissed him goodbye. Milburn went into battle with the pendant still around his neck. He was killed and for many weeks, no letter came to the girl he left behind.

Finally a large batch of dead soldier's effects were brought to England and a London illustrated journal photographed many of them in an effort to trace the families of the fallen men. Miss Grey saw the photograph of the pendant she gave Private Milburn and claimed it.

"WAR NAMES" FOR BABIES.

(By United Press.)

Rome, June 30th (By Mail) News from Varesina, a small provincial town, says that "war" names for new born children are all the rage.

In one case, a young Italian mother of triplets, two girls and a boy, named the trio "Trente, Trieste and Italie." There are several "Cadorinas" and a host of "Abruzzis."

HE HAD SOME PRIDE.

London, Jun 30. (By Mail)—A suffragette recruiting agent on the Stand severely berated a stalwart young man because he had not joined the army. After accusing him of cowardice, she asked: Have you no pride in your country? Recovering from the shock, the S. Y. M. finally answered: "Yes, madman, I have plenty of pride in my country. I'm going back next week. I'm an American." The suffragette apologized.

Shepherd Leaves Rome After Talking With Thomas Nelson Page,
Runs Across New Yorker

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)
(Second of three stories. Third tomorrow)

Rome, July 2. (By Mail)—You've come to Rome to go to the Italian front.

First you've got a lot of talking to do with a sturdy grizzled American. But that's a pleasure. His name is Thomas Nelson Page, and he is the American Ambassador to Rome. He comes from somewhere way down south, to judge by his soft accent and when you tell him that you have come to Rome to go to the Italian front he laughs a soft southern laugh and says:

"Well, young man, Ah'll do mah best foh you, but Ah'm afraid it won't do you much good."

His best, however, fills you with hope. It's a letter to Zuppelli, the minister of war; it says you're trustworthy identifies you as an American newspaperman and lifts you outside the possibility of being taken for a German spy.

Off to the war office with the letter. It's a gigantic building. No one can understand your Italian, but at last you're led to the office of the war minister.

A grizzled officer comes out to meet you. He is General Elia, the sub-secretary of war.

"We're not letting anybody go to the front," he says in good English. "Maybe we'll have some tours for correspondents after things get settled down, but just now there is no hope. I'm very sorry but that is the way matters stand."

Just as you're leaving, he adds. "You see the matter is entirely in the hands of Gen. Cadorna who has charge of field operations."

So Cardona is the man to see! And he's at the front. And you're not allowed at the front!

But the next day you buy a ticket for Venice; Venice is only 60 miles from the front and that's something.

You reach Venice at 11 o'clock at night. No traveler has ever seen Venice looking like this before. There are no lights; the canals are silent and deserted because of military orders. For the half dozen travelers who came in on the night train there are four gondolas. In the brilliant moonlight, you seem to be in a fairy land as your gondolier rows you through the silvery pathways that are called canals. This is a part of your dash to the front. This unforgettable half hour in the deserted water ways of Venice; this little piece of the moonlight night in this silent dream city lying on your pathway toward bloody war.

Your sleep, that night, is disturbed by mosquitoes—the huge, salt water brothers of the New Jersey bird. The beautiful, silvery canals are full of the mosquito itch; their romantic charm loses its power over you, as your head under the sheets. But it's all part of going to the Italian front.

The next morning you go to the police station, via boat. It is the military law that you must report to the police and get from them a signed permission to remain in the town.

"What can I do for you, young feller?" asks a dark mustached man, sitting at a desk. He looks every inch a detective.

"I want a permit to stay in Venice. But where did you learn English."

"Why I was born in New York and I lived there until seven years ago," says the policeman.

"Why did you leave?"

He is working busily, filling in a blank with your name and description and he doesn't even look up as he says:

"I tried to get on the New York police department but I failed in my examination. So I came over here and got on the Venice police force. Here's your paper. You're from New York, too. Well, if there's anything I can do for you here, give me the high sign. You know you reporters are not supposed to be allowed to stay in town."

The only use you have for the paper is to present it at the railroad station when you buy a ticket for Udine. Udine is the front, the headquarters. If you can get there you can throw yourself on the mercies of Gen. Cadorna, chief of the Italian army and pour into his ears the story of how America is longing to know, as first hand, all there is to know about the Italian army.

(Tomorrow—Shepherd gets to the front, in a manner so to speak)

religious profession, the ideals of men who look without rather than within, who prefer extrinsic and perishing tinsel to inmost eternal glory, who are satisfied to broaden the stakes of a nation instead of deepening the life within, as if more and more were over the better," continued Rabbi Wise.

"I hold that the absence of women from the councils of State is partially, if not largely, responsible for the continuance of the plague of war upon earth. Is it less than incredible that eight of nine nations are engaged in the greatest wars that the world has ever known and not a woman in all these lands has been consulted as to whether war or peace should be through tens of thousands of men of women born have died and the last great terrible cost of war in life-long sorrow and suffering will be by women borne.

"When all is said, war's woes will be immediate until there come to pass a world-wide attempt to moderate and ultimately to destroy the heretofore ineradicable race and religious antagonism. God has given a place to every people and race and faith in the world.

"If war is to end, it is the war within our own souls that must go. Physical preparedness alone does not make war. It is moral preparedness for war which makes armaments possible and was inevitable.

"Rarely are wars fought in the interest of the people. Rarely are war engaged in because of some wrong which the people have suffered, because of some outrages inflicted upon the people. It is the imperial and dynastic systems which undertake war, making national warfare, forsooth, interchangeable with dynastic perpetuity.

"The unreality and failure of the peace movement are shown forth most clearly by its failure to have offered a substitute for war. Must it forever be true, as Ruskin pointed out, that the words which the Muse of History coupled together were peace and sensuality, peace and selfishness, peace and corruption, peace and death? A substitute for war must be found and can be found, some outlet for the passion of men to serve and strive together, some opportunity for the play of the social instinct which burns within men and is ready to merge the interest of the citizen in the interest of the country. Men must be given some great and resistless call to service that merge the individual in the community. If you will not let men march and stand and serve together they will stand and dis-serve and battle against one another. The need of asking men to serve in behalf of their country is most urgent in our day of soft manners and manieured mannins. The new emphasis of the peace movement must be constructive, providing for public and commonwealth service on the part of the youth of the nation, to whom Professor James' plan must be offered,—a year of service for the able-bodied youth of the land.

Whatever the causes of war, and irrespective of the apportionment of moral blame, there can be no peace which makes for the supreme dominance of any one nation or the overwhelming defeat and crushing of any other. Whatever the causes of the war may have been, there can and ought to be no peace which makes for dismemberment and destruction which is wrought in the spirit of greed and spoilation. There is only one demand which may be made,—namely, that we shall have not only the end of this war but the end of wars; that there shall be no peace without a combined attempt on the part of nations of earth looking to ultimate disarmament and the reference of national disputes to international peace-courts. Peace can come only through forbearance; a lasting peace can rest upon nothing less than a high magnanimity. The last thing to be dreamed of in connection with this war in revenge Only one thing could be madder than the present warfare and that were a determination to inflict crushing punishment upon any one of the contending nations. Out of this terrible welter of blood and massacre there must come renewed and deepened respect on the part of nations for one another, a renewed and heightened reverence for national dignities, religious integrities, and racial individualities.

For us as a nation the great question which the war puts to us is not,—what can we do for ourselves, or, How can we profit from the war conditions, or, What advantages can we gain, but, What can America now do for the world,—How can we best serve the highest interests of the nations,—How can we best actualize the American principles of liberty and justice for which we stand?

DIFFERENT VIEWS OF LAW APPLICATION

Chief of Police Perrott Says Rule
Red Light Statute Couldn't be Used in Indianapolis.

WHY? NO IMMORAL HOUSES

(By United Press.)
Indianapolis, August 6.—"What effect with the new Rule Red Light law have on the immoral resorts in Indianapolis?" was the question put Chief of police Perrott today.

"What do you mean?" asked the chief, apparently puzzled.

"Has the new law put many immoral resorts out of business, or will it do so?" was asked.

The chief still puzzled. "You are taking it for granted that there are immoral houses in Indianapolis," he said. "Indianapolis has no such houses. The only one I could find has been closed."

The reporter was disappointed. He had expected to get a good story. He continued his way and found Morton C. Pearson, representing the Church Federation. He put the same question and got the following reply:

"On my desk are complaints against about fifty houses declared to be resorts. I have investigated some of these and found them running wide open, some of them with music. In the past six weeks we have used the Rule law to such effect that we have compelled twelve to fifteen resorts to vacate houses. No, we don't know where the inmate moved to. We intend to initiate a fall campaign that will put all the resorts in Indianapolis out of business."

And there you have in a nut shell the controversy between the city police and the church federation. The question is, what is a resort?

One man said that resorts had been nicknamed. "The new name," he said, "is 'resort house,' and there are about 150 houses in Indianapolis that bear the nickname."

CROWDS SILENT BEFORE EXHIBIT

Belgian Display at Panama-Pacific Exposition is Veritably a Shrine to Many

PLACED IN FRENCH BUILDING

Reputation After Visit of "Diamond Jim" Brady

Tower of Jewels Just Recovering

BY FRED S. FERGUSON
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)
San Francisco, August 6.—The tragedy of Belgium is written deep at the Panama Pacific Exposition. Laughing crowds thrilled by the splendor of the big fair and its wonders, suddenly become silent before what is veritably Belgium's shrine among the exhibits of nations of the world.

The appearance of the maimed and torn nation, which holds the sympathy of an entire world, is not expected. And when it is encountered under the sheltering folds of the French tri-color men and women stop short.

Two rooms in the palatial French building are set aside for Belgium. France has done more than any other nation in her efforts to pay her respects to this country through her exhibits and not the least of the pains taken by the Republic is the attention given Belgium. To the right of the broad, carpeted stairs leading to the main floor of the French building is the Belgium exhibit. Above the door is merely the inscription "Belgium." But beyond is the work of a nation rearing its head above its ruins and proclaiming to the world that Belgium still lives.

The Belgium exhibit is not large. There is a big model of the city of Antwerp, now held by the Germans. There are a few paintings, bronzes and exhibits of work from miscellaneous industries.

Men and women stand in silence before busts of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, mounted upon pedestals near the center of the room. At the foot of these pedestals are flowers and wreaths are piled high, filling the room with their pungent odor. About the walls of the second room appear such names as Ostend, Burges, Namur and other cities, well known to Americans through war despatches.

Apparently nothing was overlooked by France in preparing her exhibit for the big fair. There are three rare rugs and tapestries from the time of Napoleon, relics of Balzac, General Lafayette, and others famous in French history as well as costly exhibits from the modistes and shops of Paris, the nation's best in art and in every industry.

The Tower of Jewels is just beginning to get back its reputation after having encountered the competition of "Diamond Jim" Brady during his visit here. "Diamond Jim" arrived without advance notices, but soon had the sparkling tower blushing for shame. On one of his afternoon visits to the fair Brady drew an "engineer" of about 120 pounds when he rented a wheel chair to take him about the grounds. As "Diamond Jim" was accompanied by a young woman, the 120 pounder had a fair sized load to push even over level streets, considering Brady's heft. But when the chair headed toward the Baker street entrance, passing the Inside Inn people began to line up to watch.

There is a gradual rise there for about two blocks and near the top the incline is sharp. Brady sparkled in the sunlight oblivious to the cause of titters floating around, but the chair boy was extended at an angle of about 60 degrees, perspiring, pushing and blowing and barely able to keep "Diamond Jim" from rolling back on him. He made the hill, but it was close call.

more opportunity to say whether they are ready to make an honest attempt among themselves to compose their differences.

Congressman Slayden, in closing his address, read five-written pages from an article by himself in which he recommended the course which is now being followed by President Wilson.

"I have watched with interest the president's solution to reach peace in Mexico," he said, "and I am extremely gratified to see the idea which I have been hammering at for four or five years met with the approval of President Wilson and his advisors."

Mr Slayden gave the audience a description of the republic gained from his intimate relation with it, by reason of having lived in a border town. He told of the highway-men who thrived years ago and of their practices.

"And confidently," he added, "I am quite certain conditions have not changed much in the last four or five years. It was once reported that a bishop was a confederate of the famous bandit Gomez, but such things as that do not now exist, I am sure."

He recalled Mexico first gained her independence in 1821, but not peace. He declared the president was wasting his emotions becoming indignant over the fact that there is no recognized head to the government because there have been sixty presidents in the last ninety years. Diaz ruled for thirty years of the ninety and four years he controlled the term of another president, so that in reality there has been an average of a new president every year, the speaker said.

To show the peculiar ways of Mexicans, Congressman Slayden cited the fact that President Comfomort once led an insurrection against his own administration.

He said no man ever came into the administration of the affairs of a government under more adverse conditions than Diaz in 1877. He said the ordinary charge against Diaz that he was ambitious and had no regard for his people was unjust. The speaker recalled he became the national hero by the expulsion of the French and could have become president then, but he turned the government over to one to whom it rightfully belonged. When Diaz came into power, Slayden said, the government had neither credit nor money, but he placed the country on a sound financial basis and subdued all of the tribal chiefs and placed them in charge of the highway guards. Then followed an area of peace in Mexico, the speaker declared.

"I am frequently asked," he continued, "why Diaz was overthrown by Madero. Diaz was growing old and turned much of his work over to aids who were not as patriotic as he and who grew rich and were hated by the people. The unequal distribution of land was another element that caused unrest."

Speaking of the present revolution, Congressman Slayden said: "The only murderer I know of who is accorded respect is this mercenary ruffian, the gunman who hires himself out to kill a man he never saw." The audience thought he referred to Villa.

He said the civil wars in Mexico are characterized by the utmost brutality. I have been told, he continued, that the federals, when there were any, were the only soldiers who would not kill people for the mere pleasure of seeing them die. That can't be said of any other band or clique, he added. They have a mad desire to destroy and kill, the speaker said, even damaging unoffending coal mines.

Congressman Slayden said he did not have the privilege of knowing Carranza, but that he understood he was a man very much out of place on a horse or in a military camp.

He described Villa as the most prominent and aggressive figure which has developed. He called attention to the fact that Villa was not his right name; that it had been changed on account of an episode in his early life. Mr. Slayden said Villa was opposed to monopoly, especially to the government's monopoly on the making of money, and that his liberty was taken from him when he attempted to compete with the government. While in jail, the congressman said, Villa learned to write. The speaker and Villa headed the faction in the north. He said Villa recently made his barber a general because he was an expert at his trade. Congressman Slayden said there were as many women as men in the armies of Mexico. He declared that they do all the foraging because there is no commissary department and that they are said to be responsible for much of the arson that is committed. He added that the women do everything but wash, and no one does that.

Congressman Slayden was sent to the chautauqua by the Carnegie Peace Foundation and is not a regular chautauqua attraction.

Lee Nixon, After Sixteen Years in U. S. Government Service in Porto Rico, is Retired.

POSTMASTER AT SAN JUAN

Lee Nixon, formerly of Carthage and one time city clerk of Indianapolis who has been in the United States government service for the last sixteen years, is back in Indiana for an indefinite stay. He is well known in Rush county where he has many friends. At present Mr. Nixon is making his home with his brother, C. O. Nixon, in Indianapolis.

He served as postmaster at San Juan for nearly three years. He is a Republican, and the Democratic administration and the congress refused to confirm his appointment. So he held on without a commission until a short time ago, when E. W. Keith, of Tennessee, was appointed postmaster, and Nixon thus was retired. He turned the postoffice over to Keith in June and in July Nixon started for the states.

MR. JITNEY NOT OUT OF WOODS

He Has to Meet up With Lot of Obstacles Before he Has Freedom of the Streets.

PLANS OF MANY CITIES

Methods of Regulations Are Being Considered Since Commission Has Made Ruling.

(By United Press.)
Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 6.—Mr. Jitney who has escaped death or serious injury twice is not yet out of the woods in Indiana. Today he is fighting in every city where he has gained a foothold against a growing demand that he be licensed, bonded and regulated out of exist.

Thus far the fight against jitney bus has developed into an excellent exhibition of "passing the buck." No state authority is willing to assume the responsibility of regulating the nickle-a-ride auto which has been hailed on one side as a "craze" and on the other as a safeguard against the "powerful traction interests."

The legislature passed the buck to the public service commission and the public service commission, by its refusal last week to regulate the jitney, passed the buck to each individual city.

The fight is all ready to begin in a dozen cities which were only waiting the decision of the commission before they attempted to push ordinances directed at the innovation in common carriers.

Terre Haute will witness a fight in its city council for and against jitney bus regulation. Kokomo will see a similar fight. Warsaw, it is reported, will pass an ordinance requiring a license of $15 a year and an indemnity bond of $2,000. Richmond announced recently that if the commission did not regulate the jitney an ordinance would be represented to the council.

Closely following the commission's decision, the traction interests in Kokomo decided to meet the jitneys at their own game. On streets tapping sections not served by street cars, the company will use jitney busses of its own.

Indianapolis probably is the least affected of any of the large cities of the state by the jitneys.

DEFENSES ARE TO BE DISCUSSED

Military Preparedness Will be Topic at Annual Conference of Governors in Boston.

MANY TO BE IN DISCUSSION

Mexican Situation and European War Causes Governors to Ponder State's Responsibilities.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 6.—Military preparedness for national defense is to be discussed by the governors of the various states at the annual conference of governors to be held in Boston, August 24, 25 and 26, according to the program announced today by M. C. Riley, secretary of the Governors' Conference. While this conference includes in its membership the governors and former governors of the 48 states, the Boston meeting is to have added significance by reason of the fact that adjutant generals of many states also will attend and participate in the discussion of plans for increasing the size and increasing the efficiency of the militia of the states as part of the national defense.

The discussion is to be opened by Governor James P. Fielder of New Jersey who will read a paper on "The Relation of the State to the National Defense."

Others who will participate in the discussion are Governors Charles S. Whitman of New York, Frank B. Willis of Ohio, Edward F. Duane of Illinois, Ernest Lister of Washington, W. S. Hammond of Minnesota, the former governors Wm. Hodges Mann of Virginia, and Elias M. Ammons of Colorado.

"The Mexican situation and the European war doubtless have caused governors of many states to ponder their own and their state's responsibilities in relation to military preparedness," said Secretary Riley. "All the forty-eight governors were consulted in the preparation of the program for the coming conference. Practically all asked that some phase of the efficiency of our citizen soldiery be discussed, thus disclosing a keen interest on the part of the states in the problem now confronting the nation—an interest so keen as to amount to a recognition by the states of a degree of responsibility."

"Utterances of many public men, magazine articles and the current news carried by the daily press all indicate that there is an increasing conviction that Americans, as individuals and as a nation, should be capable of acting in self-defense. Many of the governors feel that the time is ripe for some uniformity of action in co-operation with the national government for providing an adequate program for improving the national defense. This problem is no longer the simple one that it was 100 years ago. Now, more than ever before, there is a general acceptance of the doctrine that every American boy should receive training which will equip him to become an efficient unit in the nation's defense. This is not a new doctrine, but is merely emphasized at this time by the awful spectacle of all Europe engaged in war. Readiness on the part of the citizen to serve his country clearly was contemplated by the constitution, which provides that Congress may call forth the citizens to serve as militiamen to quell insurrection and repel invasion. Many governors feel that if every young man is subject under the law to be called upon for military duty, then it is important that such training should be provided as will fit young men to perform that service well."

Other subjects to be discussed at The Executive Budget. Economy and Efficiency in the State. Taxation. Conservation. Uniformity in the Fundamentals of Workmen's Compensation Acts of the Different States. Duties and Responsibilities of Governors in Dealing with Prisoners.

Woman Manager Gives all of 2500 Employees Chance at Stock

New York, Aug. 6.—A woman who doesn't believe in roof gardens and rest rooms, free medicine, free umbrellas for rainy days and all that sort of thing for employees, is the head of a manufacturing concern in this city that is making an immense amount of money. Very evidently she does not care for Charity, as spelled with a capital "C" and yet she has the respect and liking of the concern's 2500 employees to a most remarkable degree. She is not giving them charity or philanthropy or uplift—she is giving them the whole plant, or, at least, she is enabling them to earn the title to it.

The woman is Mrs. James F. Warbasse, of Brooklyn, head of the Dennison Manufacturing company. Also she is wife, mother and mistress of a happy home. To her husband and her six children she gives a great part of the credit for the system being worked out by the manufacturing company. They believe with her, she says, that acquiring enormous wealth and then giving some of it back to the world in the form of uplift is as wrong as wrong can be.

Her idea is that the way to wipe out the world's suffering and want, the way to remove "industrial unrest," is to have all large enterprises administered at the point of production. This will be literally true of the Dennison company, she says, when the employees have taken up $100,000 worth of stock.

"I should class myself as a parasite if it were not for my family," Mrs. Warbasse told Zoe Beckley, of the Evening Mail, when the latter hunted her up at her Brooklyn residence.

"My children are what justify my existence. They are my only creative production. If I simply lived here in Brooklyn, idle and childless, visiting the Dennison factories at South Framingham twice a year, I should have no right on earth to any profits from those factories."

Under the plan being worked out at the Dennison Company, only employees who have salaries of $1,200 a year and over have voting power as to the administration of the business, although all employees have a chance to own stock—"to share in the industrial partnership," as Mrs. Warbasse puts it.

"This," she says, hoisting an insistent baby Warbasse into her lap "is not nearly radical enough for me. My conception of industrial partnership is to allow every worker a voice as to salaries, hours, conditions, environment, production and general running of the business."

"Nothing short of that fulfills my ideal. I am hoping to have this change made by Harry Dennison and the others who are there on the ground, as soon as possible."

This phrase "on the ground" represents to Mrs. Warbasse the crux of the industrial problem.

"Absentee ownership," she says, "is the curse of civilization. The coal mines of far away states are administered from Wall street. This is preposterous. The management must be by the workers themselves at the point of production. I cannot make that emphatic enough."

"There is no other way of solving the problems of the business. No one but the workers themselves should say what is best for them. Thus they will learn to think. Thus their entire interest and enthusiasm for work will be utilized for themselves as well as for the business. They should suggest their own rewards and punishments, just as I often ask my children how to treat disobedience or reward merit."

"Welfare work, so called, should not be in the hands of a few high-salaried men. The enormous incomes of capitalists are all wrong in principle anyhow. They cannot justify their wealth by gifts of colleges and cash for palliative measures. There should be no necessity for palliative measures."

"If capitalists limited their incomes to amounts which would provide them good houses, good rainment, good food and good education for their children, leaving the rest of the profit to the disposition of those who produce it, the misery of the world would be wiped out, if you have nothing to do with the administration of your properties, except to collect the income, you have no right to that income!"

"When Mr. Rockefeller was appealed to at the time of the Denver riots he refused to accept any responsibility. No blame attached to him, he said, because he was not on the ground and had nothing to do with the causes of the revolt. Again I say that the man who tries to escape blame on the ground that he had no direct administrative influence over his properties should also escape the benefits."

The employees-ownership plan of Dennison Manufacturing Company has not escaped criticism. A Philadelphia newspaper recently called it the dream of a few idealistic young people. Successful business enterprises, it was pointed out, were not run by workmen, but by superior minds, captains of industry, men of broad vision and marked ability.

To this Mrs. Warbasse replies simply. "The majority of those who head large businesses have worked themselves from the bottom upwards. These make the best 'captains.'"

GERMANS CAPTURE ANOTHER FORTRESS

Official Dispatches Say Ivangorod Has Fallen, Earlier Statements Having Indicated This

FOOD SUPPLIES WITHDRAWN

(By United Press.)

Vienna, (Via Berlin), Aug. 6.—The Russian fortress of Ivangorod fifty miles southeast of Warsaw has been captured by the Austro-Germans, it was officially announced here today. The allied troops began entering the fortress on Tuesday.

An official statement at Petrograd early today indicated that the Russians were about to surrender Ivangorod. The Russian war office said all food supplies had been withdrawn from the fortress because it was realized the brick walls could not withstand the battering of modern guns. The Petrograd statement, however, contradicts the Vienna claim that the fortress was captured on Tuesday. Petrograd declared that the Russians retired from the Ivangorod on the left bank Wednesday after blowing up the bridges and establishing themselves on the right bank. The city and main fortress of Ivangorod lie on the right bank.

ENGLISH DRIVE NOT POSSIBLE

Kitchener's Army Will Not be Able to Take Offensive For at Least One Year.

MAY FORCE DARDANELLES

British Troops Not in Service Number Less Than 600,000—Poor Showing Thus Far.

(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Copenhagen, July 22 (By Mail to New York)—England will not be able to use Kitchener's army for an offensive drive against the Germans this summer, and probably not in the autumn. If the coming winter is severe enough to interfere with effective military operations there may be no major English attempt to drive the Germans back to their own frontier until next spring—one year later. In the meantime, peace may come, and the war may end without the full strength of the British empire having a chance to test itself against the Germans.

This information reached the United Press from sources in close touch with inner conditions both in England and at the front. The United Press also learns that the British munitions situation is much more serious than is generally known, and that peace is nearer than is publicly acknowledged. British statesmen realize the empire's prestige has suffered severely because of the small part England's army has been able to play in the continental fighting. This is the principal reason why England will not talk about terms of peace at the present time. Once Great Britain's offensive power is rehabilitated, England will not be averse to considering overtures for ending the war.

Recovery of military self respect could be gained by England if Sir Ian Hamilton's army would bring the Gallipoli campaign to a triumphant conclusion. The forcing of the Dardanelles would be chiefly a British victory and Constantinople's fall would restore England's prestige.

The Gallipoli operations, therefore are more important than the campaign in France and Belgium insofar as their bearing on peace is concerned. Sir Ian Hamilton's task is becoming noticeable lighter after each assault against the Turkish positions and quarters not given to baseless optimism believe that the fortifications guarding the Dardanelles narrows may be subdued from the land side by next autumn and possibly before.

The necessity for hammering away at the Turks is one reason why the English army in Flanders is so short of ammunition. The United Press is able to state that the lack of ammunition is not the sole source of worry to Sir John French. Not only has the British war office failed to supply sufficient shells for the troops at the front, but also it has neglected to furnish an adequate number of machine guns.

The British army on the continent is now unable to create a diversion favorable to the Russians because Sir John French fears a depletion of his ammunition in a futile drive might later permit the Germans to get through the British lines to Calais. Practically all the ammunition the British possess must be husbanded for defensive use on this account.

The United Press learns that no more than 600,000 British troops are at the front in Western Europe, on the Gallipoli peninsula and in Egypt. Less than 500,000 of these are in active service in France and Belgium. It will be impossible, even for this comparatively small force, under Sir John French's command to be effectively used until England can obtain more rapid firers. England is not so busy making the much needed guns as she is in turning out the machinery with which the guns must later be manufactured. The dearth of proper machinery is still far from having been overcome by the British government and it will be a considerable time before the war factories are properly equipped to begin relieving the gun stringency at the front.

Whether England ever can manufacture war munitions proportionate to the German output is beginning to be doubted. The lack of organizing capacity the Englishmen are showing is amazing. Even now, nearly a year after the outbreak of the war, Woolrich Arsenal, London's great munitions factory is not running its maximum capacity. Some of the men employed there are stock exchange brokers who work in an amateurish way during the Saturday half holidays and on other casual occasions. Lloyd George recently estimated that Germany and Austria Hungary are making 250,000 shells per day. The United Press learns that the British war office experts estimate 250,000 shells per month is the maximum capacity of all the factories of Lancashire even under conditions of war time pressure. Lancashire is England's leading manufacturing country.

Besides making ammunition for the army, shells must also be produced for the British navy in huge quantities. Germany does not have to divert the output of her arsenals in this manner to anything like the same extent as does England. The British fleet has fired an enormous quantity of shells during the Dardanelles operations alone which have to be replaced; and since the war began, England's newly built super-dreadnaughts have made great demands for large calibre shells, the most difficult of all to manufacture. One of the reasons why the British army is so short of shells is the vital necessity for England to keep her fleet lavishly supplied with munition as the first principle of her self preservation.

The war is costing England $15,000,000 a day. Each month of the war adds $20,000,000 in interest charges, that must be raised annually hereafter by increased taxation. If the national debt continues to pile up, and, if, after months of waiting the accumulated shells fail to drive the Germans more than a few miles back toward their own territory will the effort be worth the cost?

British statesmen are beginning to ask themselves this question without finding a satisfactory answer. The same question probably will soon be raised among the people at large. Then when British public opinion begins to suspect the doubtful value of an interminable $15,000,000 a day war, a compromise peace will only be delayed if the British army requires more time to regain the world's respect.

TODAY'S ODDEST STORY

(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 6.—Here is the latest Ford story.

During a "war scare" in this country, certain officers of the Michigan National Guard were ordered to locate emergency supplies. One called on Ford and asked if he could supply the chassis for a large number of ambulances.

"Yes," Ford replied, "if you don't want too many. I could supply 1,000 a day. But we would have to give due notice of your needs."

"How much time would you want?" queried the officer, bracing himself for a demand of several months.

"Well," Ford replied thoughtfully, "You ought to let us know not later than 4 o'clock of the day before deliveries were to start."

The crowd at the chautauqua this afternoon and tonight was expected to rival that of Tuesday when Helen Keller and the Welsh singers were here. The big attraction this afternoon was Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives.

He arrived here this morning and was entertained at noon at luncheon at the home of James E. Watson. About a dozen local men interested in politics were also guests, representing both the Democratic and Republican parties.

The chautauqua is gradually drawing to a close, there remaining only two more days after today. The Grace Hall-Riheldaffer company gave the prelude this afternoon and will appear again tonight in a prelude, which will conclude their engagement here. The company gave a full concert Thursday night and was given a hearty reception. Many of the numbers called for one or more encores.

Much is expected of the Cathedral choir of eight voices which will come Saturday to remain throughout the rest of the chautauqua. The choir will give preludes, with the exception of Sunday night, when a full concert will be given.

The award of prizes in the baby contest Saturday afternoon at four o'clock will attract many persons. Saturday night Louis Williams, the electrical wizard, will be here. He will show the many applications of electricity.

Dr. N. McGee Waters, pastor of Tompkins Avenue Congregational church of Brooklyn, will be the speaker Sunday afternoon, following a prelude by the choir. He will be an exceptional treat, it is believed.

Congressman James L. Slayden of Texas, who spoke at the chautauqua Thursday afternoon on Mexican affairs, claimed credit for the plan which was put into execution Thursday evening at Washington when the six ranking Latin-American diplomats in Washington conferred with Secretary of State Lansing regarding the pacification of Mexico and agreed that the factions in Mexico should be given one

BOYS LECTURED BY MAYOR BEBOUT

Promised to Pay For the Lights That Were Broken and Were Given Freedom.

ONE ARREST MAY BE MADE

After lecturing the crowd of boys for breaking the lights at the chautauqua grounds, Mayor Bebout gave them their freedom. This was true with one exception and an arrest may be expected in this case.

The boys were told to get their tents out of the city park and all agreed to pay for the lights that were broken. About twenty boys were rounded up by the police and brought before the mayor Thursday afternoon. By questioning the boys Mayor Bebout found out who shot out the lights and they were told that a similar occurrence would surely mean a trip to the boys' school at Plainfield.

It was intimated today that an arrest would be made for the breaking of the street light outside of the chautauqua grounds.

SPECULATING ON NEXT GERMAN MOVE

Military Critics Wonder Whether Kaiser Will March Down Alps Into Northern Italy.

MAY START TO PARIS AGAIN

By E. L. KEEN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

London, August 6.—British critics conceded today that the fall of Warsaw will have a tremendous influence on the next six months' fighting in Europe and possibly on the political fortunes of the allies. Capture of Warsaw will release at least 1,000,000 Austro-Germans for operations elsewhere. The military critics turned their attention today to speculating what the next move of Germany would be.

A popular guess was that the Germans would renew the offensive against Paris at once or hurl all of the available forces against Anglo-French lines to reach Calais. Other critics suggested that the Kaiser will now join Austria in a determined attempt to march down the Alps into northern Italy or completely crush Serbia.

The Petrograd reports that the Russian armies have escaped from the German trap is accepted as true in military circles here where it is assumed that the German campaign in Poland is now about to close. In some quarters, however, it is believed Von Hindenburg may attempt an advance against Petrograd or along the Odessa railway though this view is now shared by the majority of the London critics.

MANY VISIT THE PURDUE HOG CAR

Hear Lectures by Drs. Starr and Kigin, Formerly of this City and See Exhibits.

CO-OPERATION IS KEYNOTE

Only Working Together With Extension Department, Can Farmers Stamp Out Cholera.

Accompanied by Dr. Chester G. Starr and Dr. L. C. Kigin, who was formerly a veterinarian here, the Purdue hog special was on a siding at the Pennsylvania station today. The car was open all morning and closed at one o'clock so as not to interfere with the chautauqua. The car came here from Manilla, where it was stationed all day Thursday, and will go from there to Falmouth, where it will stop Saturday.

Drs. Starr and Kigin accompany the cars as lecturers. From time to time during the morning they made short talks to the farmers and stockmen who gathered to see the demonstrations and exhibits and when the lectures were not in progress the visitors inspected the car thoroughly and read some of the literature which was passed out. There were two cars, one a regular passenger coach where the lectures were held, in addition to the car containing the exhibits.

All kinds of pictures of sanitary hog houses and feeding pens were shown. Management of the hog in general from the time he is a pig until he tips the scales at 200 pounds was discussed by Mr. Starr and the associate lecturer who was with him. Hog cholera, of course, came in for the greater part of the discussion. For this disease clean lots and vaccination was urged where the hogs are well before the serum is given. When the hogs once have the disease in a virulent form there is no hope for them, it was said, and they might just as well be killed and burned. Worms and lice and sore mouths in pigs came in also for a part in the discussion of hog management.

Here are some vital points in the treatment and management of hogs: For thumps in pigs give epsom salts. This can be worked into the slops and piggy will never think anything about it more than that the slop is a little off in quality. For worms in hogs give three to five grains of san-tonin and five to eight grains of calomel to each one hundred pounds of live weight.

It was explained that the supposition has been that sows would not permit many young pigs to nurse because they had sharp teeth and it has been an extensive practice to pull these teeth. The Purdue lecturer explained that the trouble was really due to sore mouths in pigs and this prevented them from nursing normally, with the result that their mothers would not permit it at all. The treatment for sore mouth in pigs was said to be the use of permanganate of potash. For the extermination of lice nothing is better it was said than the use of pure crude oil as it comes from the wells. For cholera, the only effective treatment is the preventative use of serums in proper time and manner.

Mr. Starr stated he was trying while on this trip to emphasize disease control. He suggested that there is no use to raise more hogs if they are to keep on dying as they have been during the past few years. He talked scientific feeding as a means of keeping the hogs in a higher state of health and insisted on the eradication of worms and lice which lower the vitality of the

Dr. Geisel Tells Teachers That it Has no Food Value Whatever, Institute Closes

IS DESTROYER OF NERVE CELL

Pass Resolutions Thanking Speakers And Urge Teachers to Oppose Tobacco Habit

The Rush County Teachers' Institute closed at noon today after one of the most successful sessions in recent years. Another large crowd was in attendance at the closing session. The resolutions as prepared by the committee, composed of J. H. Scholl, W. O. Fox and W. E. Wagoner, were adopted as read.

The resolutions show that the teachers are in hearty accord with Dr. Carolyn Geisel in her stand against the use of tobacco by school teachers and pupils. This practice was condemned by the committee. The resolutions also expressed the appreciation of the institute to the speakers of the week for their excellent work. It was again urged that the institute be held in connection with the chautauqua and this will more than likely be followed again next year. Efforts in the past to change the time and place for holding the institute have failed and no effort was made to do so this year.

Dr. Geisel this morning urged the teachers to put forth a greater effort to make the children understand that alcohol has no food value and along with nicotine was a food destroyer. She illustrated how the nerve cells were destroyed by alcohol and showed how the use of alcohol tended to tear down the system rather than build it up.

She again urged the teachers against the use of tobacco and pointed out that children in the school room could not do as efficient work by using tobacco. Dr. Geisel stated that she hoped the teachers would go forth from the institute red with the thought that to make a better race alcohol and the cigarette must be put out of existence.

"I want you teachers," said Dr. Geisel, "to impress on the child that alcohol taken even in small doses has no food value." She described the effect of alcohol on the nervous system and told how the constant use of it soon broke the will power of the user to such an extent that the use could not be stopped. She gave statistics to show the effects of alcohol on the human body. She stated that forty out of every hundred cases of apoplexy were caused by the excessive use of alcohol. The place to start teaching inefficiency caused by alcohol is in the school room, she stated.

Statistics were given showing that students in Amherst and Yale that did not smoke tobacco in any form weighed twenty-four per cent more than those who did. The non-smokers in these two great colleges, she said, were twenty-seven per cent taller; had forty per cent more chest expansion and had seventy-two per cent more lung capacity. "The user of tobacco," said Dr. Geisel, "shrinks in everything, as is shown by these figures, and even shrinks in brain capacity."

In closing Dr. Geisel urged the teachers to start work for a better race by proper training of the children as the school room, she declared is the proper place to start. The resolutions adopted by the institute are as follows:

The Rush County Teachers' Institute through its committee offers

KEEPS WATCH ON AFFAIRS President in Close Touch With Mexican Conference

DEFINITELY AGREE ON A SET PROGRAM

Secretary Lansing and Latin-American Diplomats Will Propose a Peace Conference.

MAY RECOGNIZE CARRANZA

BY CHARLES P. STEWART.
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, August 6.—Secretary Lansing and the Latin-American diplomats have definitely agreed upon a program to restore order in Mexico, it was believed today, and their conference will end today.

Secretary Lansing intimated that there might be another conference. It was admitted that he will have an extremely confidential talk with General Scott, chief of staff.

The first step probably will be to propose a peace conference between Carranza and Villa with General Scott as mediator. They may be led to agree within thirty or sixty days on a provisional president acceptable to all concerned. He would act until a regular election chooses his successor.

It was reported widely in official circles today and generally believed that the Latin-American conference on the Mexican situation are a unit on recognizing General Carranza if he will agree to call an election within a stated period and eliminate himself as a candidate for permanent president.

ARMAMENTS NOT A PREVENTATIVE

Dr. Stephen S. Wise Takes Issue With Old Theory in Address at Chautauqua Thursday.

"IS WAR CURELESS?" HE ASKS

Absence of Woman From Councils of State Largely Responsible For Continuance of Plague.

"The deepest cause of the war has been the faith that mighty armaments alone could avert war, that the billions, not millions, which the military powers of Europe have spent in the last thirty years were the premium which these nations were paying for the insurance against war."

Thus did Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue, of New York, speaking on the subject, "Is War Curselless?" at the chautauqua Thursday afternoon, explode the theory that continued armament prevents war.

"Armaments, as is now seen," he declared, "are the guarantee of war's invariableness at any moment. As long as armaments are, men will resort to arms. We of this Western democracy together with our sister Republics of the Central and South America must dare become the pioneers in the interest of world-peace. Is no nation ever to make a great adventure in behalf of world-peace as many nations seem to be ready to hazard the adventure of world-war? Our opposition to war must become real and final and inflexible. The time must come when men will have to choose between killing and being killed. No government could constrain me to slay my child. If my country bids me slay my brother beyond the national frontier, I should say Nay, though the government slay me. The time has come when men must choose that they be slain for refusing to slay another rather than go forth to slay their brother at the behest of any government. The time to strike against war is not when war is but when peace is. War cannot cease until the power of any man or group of men to make or unmake was has ceased. When democracy comes to its own, the vicarious damnation, which is war in autocratic empire, will cease."

Rabbi Wise is the most popular speaker who has been on this year's program so far. He made a most impressive appeal. The crowd was the best one for the afternoon program, outside of Tuesday. Dr. Wise paid high tribute to Dr. N. McGee Waters, of Brooklyn, who speaks Sunday. The two men have exchanged pulpits on a number of occasions.

"Another cause of war is to be found in the unreality of moral and

Springfield, Ill., August 6.—Warden Edmund M. Allen of Joliet prison resigned today and his resignation was accepted by Governor Danne following the latter's refusal to grant Allen permission to reside outside the walls of the prison where his wife was murdered several months ago.

Hearing of a statement made by Allen in Chicago in connection with his resignation that "it would be hard for him to drop his honor system which had been his life's work," the governor made the following statement:

"The honor system is mine. In no sense of the word was it instituted by Mr. Allen. In my inaugural address, I specifically declared that the honor system should be instituted in the Illinois penitentiary."

"BIG RUN" ANNIVERSARY

Lawton, Okla., Aug. 6.—The people of Lawton celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of the "Big Run." August 6, 1901 the Comanche, Kiowa and Apache reservations were thrown open to settlers. Drawings were held in El Reno and at Fort Sill and the winners poured pell mell into what was one of the richest pieces of territory ever distributed by the government to home seekers. In a single night Lawton sprang into being with a population of close to 7000 people.

GOVERNOR MOVIE FAN

Madison, Wis., Aug. 6.—Governor Philipp evidently acquired the "economy" habit by practicing it himself. He is the first governor that Wisconsin has had, as far as memory goes, who eats "off the arm of a chair" and likes the movies. The governor can be seen any day in one of Madison's lunch rooms calmly absorbing a bowl of "alfalfa" and munching crackers. And every night that he is not busy he is at a vaudeville show or watching Poor Pauline slide off a cliff.

The Missionary society of the Fairview church will give a poverty social next Wednesday night. A fine will be imposed on all who do not wear their old clothes.

New Man of Business.

For generations throughout the civilized world the farmer has been regarded simply as a farmer—nothing more.

He has been classed as a farmer, rated as a farmer, and treated as a farmer, and all because there are none so blind as those who will not see.

But all of that is changed today.

The farmer has come into his own, and stands before the world in the twentieth century as the most solid, substantial and reliable class of peoples on the face of the globe.

He is a man of business—of tremendous business—the one man without whom the peoples of the world would cease to exist.

Men go out to great cities, and many of them rise, and fall, and are heard from no more.

But the farmer moves steadily onward, and upward, always to better and greater things.

He is our new man of business—our greatest men of business—the man upon whom all the world depends for the vital sustenance of life.

Marse Henry Watterson reckons that "the country will not be blinded—certainly the South will not be blinded—by the dazzling billion-dollar total" of this year's foreign trade balance. Quite right. The country knows by this time that our huge exports are made up of food products which are sent abroad to feed armies and peoples in countries where warfare has supplanted industry, and of war munitions which produce huge profits for a few manufacturers in a limited area of the country. The effect of all this is to increase the cost of living to Americans through a decreasing of the supply of food material available for home consumption, and to emphasize the general lack of prosperity in communities where war factories do not exist but where staple industries have been crippled by the folly of Democratic tariff legislation. Mr. Redfield will doubtless try to blind the country with "the dazzling billion-dollar total," but the country, like Marse Henry Watterson, has its eyes wide open.

Senator Kern of Indiana predicts that the Senate, at the next session, will adopt "a modified cloture." The Supreme Court's decision on the "grandfather laws" has knocked out cloture. The Court's ruling on the constitutional rights of negro citizens to vote, regardless of whether their grandfathers could vote in 1868, means the liberation of Congress to enact laws to protect the colored man at the polls. Congress is going to be Republican pretty soon—to wit, after March 4, 1917 and no Democratic Senator from the South is going to vote for cloture now. Cloture now may mean the passage of the Wilson-McAdoo shipping bill. Cloture two years from now means a Federal election law, and no Southern Bourbon will stand for that.

Mahoning Council, No. 36, D of P, will meet tonight and a large attendance is desired. A class of candidates will be initiated.

Don't complain of the shortness of life. You may sing a different tune later on.

Many a reputed wise head contains but little wisdom.

Cuss words are often better than the men who use them.

A vicious lie travels at express speed and stops at every station.

To bring a high polish to furniture, use plenty of elbow grease.

With some people, "to think is to act." And that's the trouble with them.

"I Want-U" is coming to town. Watch this paper for announcement of arrival.

HOOSIER HISTORY

DIALECT AND GOOD ENGLISH.
(PREPARED FOR THE UNITED PRESS BY THE CENTENNIAL DEPARTMENT OF THE INDIANA HISTORICAL COMMISSION.)

The prevalence of the dialect among the uneducated classes was indeed, though indirectly, a ministry to the cause of good English. The educated few, fearing contamination of their children's speech through daily contact with the ignorant, were more than usually strict in exacting correct usage at the hands of their youngsters. I very well remember how grievously it afflicted my own young soul, I was forbidden under penalty, to say "chimbley" and "flanner" for chimney and flannel, to call inferior things "ornery" to use the compromise low—abbreviation of allow, which very generally took the place of the Yankee "guess" and the southern "reckon" and above all to call tomatoes "tomatoes."—George Carey Eggleston in "Recollections of a varied life."

+ What Our Neighbors +
+ Are Talking About +

The Hoosier Highway.

(Marion News-Leader.)

The Hoosier-Dixie Highway movement is meeting with a popular endorsement that was only vaguely anticipated when the effort was inaugurated by the Marion Association of Commerce. The local commercial body saw the possibilities of a concerning link from both Cincinnati, Ohio, and Louisville, Ky., to the Lincoln Highway at Goshen, Ind., and went to work at once corresponding with commercial bodies in various counties relative to the matter. This correspondence resulted in the splendid meeting at Marion on the 14th of July and the subsequent meeting at Wabash on the 28th of July, at which a permanent organization was affected composed of Elkhart, Kosciusko, Wabash, Grant, and Madison counties.

The route as suggested through the counties named not only offers the shortest way from both of the Ohio river ends of the Dixie Highway at Cincinnati and Louisville, to Chicago and the resort regions of northern Indiana and western Michigan, but the road, almost the entire way, is already a serviceable, hard highway.

The object of the organization is not as some have thought, movement to build new roads and thus entail heavy expense upon various counties. The object of the movement is for the purpose of keeping serviceable the road already built and exploiting it as the most direct route from the Ohio river ends of the Dixie Highway to the Lincoln Highway at Goshen, and to Chicago. In addition to exploiting this route the Hoosier-Dixie Highway Association, with its headquarters in Marion, will have the road properly logged and marked so that it may be traveled either day or night with perfect assurance that the traveler is on the right road and the short route between the cities named. As a connecting link in the great Dixie Highway it is so fortunate in its geographical location that it is bound to become the popular route from the Ohio river northward.

But there are even greater possibilities in the effort of the Hoosier-Dixie Highway Association than those mentioned in the foregoing. The time is very near at hand when Indiana should have a general system of highway building that will give the taxpayers a dollar's worth of road, for every dollar invested in road building and thus saving the various counties the vast expense of experimenting in hard road building, each county building according to plans, which in many instances, are both impracticable and expensive.

There is however even a greater possibility for the Hoosier-Dixie Highway Association. It is a part of the plan of the Dixie Highway Association to ask for federal aid in building the great loop of this north and south thoroughfare.

By such an organization as that which has been perfected through the efforts of the Marion Association of Commerce, the Hoosier-Dixie Highway Association, by making the highway serviceable, will be in a position to share in federal aid for road building when that kind of system is inaugurated. Not only will it be in a position to share in federal aid, but the enhancement of values which must necessarily follow the inauguration of a permanent highway, such as is contemplated, will mean much to the section of the state through which it passes.

By inaugurating this movement the Marion Association of Commerce has not only started a constructive work that means better roads but a thoroughfare through the state at a much less cost than it could be acquired in any other way. The local association has started that co-operative work that will mean much to the people in the eastern part of the state and particularly the counties through which this highway will pass. In short the movement is a money saver in permanent highway construction and should meet the approval of every thoughtful man, and also command his support. It is up to all good citizens to attend the meetings of the association and give it their unqualified support for the movement means better roads and enhanced values at practically no extra cost to the taxpayers of the various counties.

London—Britain's popular war song, "Sister Susie's Sewing Shirts for Soldiers," has a new rival. It's "Cousin Clara's Cooking Cakes for Cossacks."

London—Latest London recruiting poster; "Cross Channel trips. Spend your summer holidays on the Continent. Sea passage may be booked inside." The "inside" is a recruiting office.

Berlin—Every seventh son born in prominent German families in which the preceding six sons are alive is a "God Child" of the Kaiser. He has now 12,000.

Belfast—Hugh McCruden, a German Jew, member of a British regiment, supposedly intoxicated, cheered for the Kaiser and was arrested under the Defense of the Realm act.

London—Lord Kitchener has turned the park and gardens of his country home over to picked soldiers who may roam and pick flowers "as much as they like" according to the warlord's orders.

Athens (By Mail)—That General Linman Von Sanders, commander-in-chief of the Turkish army, is in constant fear of assassination, goes about daily clad in armor; that not only covers his body but his head, as the statement today of the Constantinople correspondent of an Athens paper.

The General's head "impedimenta" resembles somewhat the head armor of the Ancients and discloses no more of the commander's face than can be seen through thick glass goggles.

Despite all precautions, according to other advices, von Sanders was wounded. It was not stated whether he was hit when clad in his armor.

Petrograd, July 1 (BY Mail)—How two Russian airmen, forced to descend behind the German lines in the Nieman river region, outwitted the enemy with petticoats was a story today from the front.

The scene of their landing was a small Lithuanian village where they burned their disabled aeroplane and appealed to sympathetic peasant women to help them escape. The women gave up their skirts, blouses and even supplied the unfortunates with a kerchief apiece. Carrying market baskets, the airmen calmly walked through the enemy's lines until they reached the river. Here they drove into the stream, skirts and all, but in so doing revealed their true identity. A fusillade of bullets followed from the Germans but the aviators succeeded in reaching the Russian shore, bedraggled but safe.

London, July 20. (By Mail)—Thirty eight members of the crew of the British cargo steamer Caucasian torpedoed off the British coast, owe their lives to a diminutive Pomeranian dog.

quarters of the National Canine Defense League where Captain Robinson of the Caucasian was awarded a silver medal for saving the life of the dog and consequently the crew. The Caucasian was torpedoed after a submarine had pursued the vessel an hour. While the crew were swarming into the boats Captain Robinson handed "Betty," his wife's ten months old Pomeranian dog to the second mate directing that the animal be placed in a lifeboat. The mate handed "Betty" to a member of the crew who accidentally dropped her overboard.

When the captain entered the boat he saw the little dog swimming toward the submarine. He immediately jumped into the water and swam about a quarter of a mile. When he reached the dog he placed it on his shoulder and was surprised to find that he was within a few yards of the submarine. The German officer of the craft, standing on deck, addressed him in imperfect English:

"I had made up my mind to blow up your lifeboats because you did not stop your ship, but I will not do so as a reward for your brave swim to save your little dog."

Captain Robinson swam back to his lifeboat and the submarine proceeded on its search for other victims.

The crew were picked up by the British steamer Inglemoor but immediately were forced to take again to their own boats as the submarine returned and torpedoed the Inglemoor.

Captain Robinson, with his dog, and crew were finally rescued by another steamer and landed at Benzance.

PICTURE TELLS STORY.

London, June 30th (By Mail)—The tragic journey of a pendant, containing a girl's picture and a lock of hair, from England to France and back again was told here today.

The day Private G. E. Milburn, a signaller in the Durhams, left his home for the front, Miss Bessie Grey, his sweetheart hung the pendant about his neck and kissed him goodbye. Milburn went into battle with the pendant still around his neck. He was killed and for many weeks, no letter came to the girl he left behind.

Finally a large batch of dead soldier's effects were brought to England and a London illustrated journal photographed many of them in an effort to trace the families of the fallen men. Miss Grey saw the photograph of the pendant she gave Private Milburn and claimed it.

"WAR NAMES" FOR BABIES.

(By United Press.)

Rome, June 30th (By Mail) News from Varesina, a small provincial town, says that "war" names for new born children are all the rage.

In one case, a young Italian mother of triplets, two girls and a boy, named the trio "Trente, Trieste and Italie." There are several "Cadornas" and a host of "Abruzzis."

HE HAD SOME PRIDE.

London, Jun 30. (By Mail)—A suffragette recruiting agent on the Stand severely berated a stalwart young man because he had not joined the army. After accusing him of cowardice, she asked: Have you no pride in your country? Recovering from the shock, the S. Y. M. finally answered: "Yes, madman, I have plenty of pride in my country. I'm going back next week. I'm an American." The suffragette apologized.

In time of kidney danger Doan's Kidney Pills are most effective.

Plenty of Rushville evidence of their worth.

G. Priest, 223 West Third street, Rushville, says: "For several years I had kidney trouble, which came on by spells. The complaint started with a dull pain just over my kidneys, then I became weak and dizzy. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and were so highly recommended that I got a supply at Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store. They proved to be the best kidney medicine I had ever tried and in a short time, my kidneys were normal."

(Statement given June 13, 1907.)

Over five years later, Mr. Priest said: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills when in need of a kidney tonic and the results are always satisfactory."

CROWDS SILENT BEFORE EXHIBIT

Belgian Display at Panama-Pacific Exposition is Veritably a Shrine to Many

PLACED IN FRENCH BUILDING

Reputation After Visit of "Diamond Jim" Brady

Tower of Jewels Just Recovering

BY FRED S. FERGUSON (U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

San Francisco, August 6.—The tragedy of Belgium is written deep at the Panama Pacific Exposition. Laughing crowds thrilled by the splendor of the big fair and its wonders, suddenly become silent before what is veritably Belgium's shrine among the exhibits of nations of the world.

The appearance of the maimed and torn nation, which holds the sympathy of an entire world, is not unexpected. And when it is encountered under the sheltering folds of the French tri-color men and women stop short.

Two rooms in the palatial French building are set aside for Belgium. France has done more than any other nation in her efforts to pay her respects to this country through her exhibits and not the least of the pains taken by the Republic is the attention given Belgium. To the right of the broad, carpeted stairs leading to the main floor of the French building is the Belgium exhibit. Above the door is merely the inscription "Belgium." But beyond is the work of a nation rearing its head above its ruins and proclaiming to the world that Belgium still lives.

The Belgium exhibit is not large. There is a big model of the city of Antwerp, now held by the Germans. There are a few paintings, bronzes and exhibits of work from miscellaneous industries.

Men and women stand in silence before busts of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, mounted upon pedestals near the center of the room. At the foot of these pedestals cut flowers and wreaths are piled high, filling the room with their pungent odor. About the walls of the second room appear such names as Ostend, Burges, Namur and other cities, well known to Americans through war despatches.

Apparently nothing was overlooked by France in preparing her exhibit for the big fair. There are three rare rugs and tapestries from the time of Napoleon, relics of Balzac, General Lafayette, and others famous in French history as well as costly exhibits from the modistes and shops of Paris, the nation's best in art and in every industry.

The Tower of Jewels is just beginning to get back its reputation after having encountered the competition of "Diamond Jim" Brady during his visit here. "Diamond Jim" arrived without advance notices, but soon had the sparkling tower blushing for shame. On one of his afternoon visits to the fair Brady drew an "engineer" of about 120 pounds when he rented a wheel chair to take him about the grounds. As "Diamond Jim" was accompanied by a young woman, the 120 pounder had a fair sized load to push even over level streets, considering Brady's heft. But when the chair headed toward the Baker street entrance, passing the Inside Inn people began to line up to watch.

There is a gradual rise there for about two blocks and near the top the incline is sharp. Brady sparkled in the sunlight oblivious to the cause of titters floating around, but the chair boy was extended at an angle of about 60 degrees, perspiring, pushing and blowing and barely able to keep "Diamond Jim" from rolling back on him. He made the hill, but it was close call.

more opportunity to say whether they are ready to make an honest attempt among themselves to compose their differences.

Congressman Slayden, in closing his address, read five-written pages from an article by himself in which he recommended the course which is now being followed by President Wilson.

"I have watched with interest the president's solution to reach peace in Mexico," he said, "and I am extremely gratified to see the idea which I have been hammering at for four or five years met with the approval of President Wilson and his advisors."

Mr Slayden gave the audience a description of the republic gained from his intimate relation with it, by reason of having lived in a border town. He told of the highway-men who thrived years ago and of their practices.

"And confidently," he added, "I am quite certain conditions have not changed much in the last four or five years. It was once reported that a bishop was a confederate of the famous bandit Gomez, but such things as that do not now exist, I am sure."

He recalled Mexico first gained her independence in 1821, but not peace. He declared the president was wasting his emotions becoming indignant over the fact that there is no recognized head to the government because there have been sixty presidents in the last ninety years. Diaz ruled for thirty years of the ninety and four years he controlled the term of another president, so that in reality there has been an average of a new president every year, the speaker said.

To show the peculiar ways of Mexicans, Congressman Slayden cited the fact that President Comonfort once led an insurrection against his own administration.

He said no man ever came into the administration of the affairs of a government under more adverse conditions than Diaz in 1877. He said the ordinary charge against Diaz that he was ambitious and had no regard for his people was unjust. The speaker recalled he became the national hero by the expulsion of the French and could have become president then, but he turned the government over to one to whom it rightfully belonged. When Diaz came into power, Slayden said, the government had neither credit nor money, but he placed the country on a sound financial basis and subdued all of the tribal chiefs and placed them in charge of the highway guards. Then followed an area of peace in Mexico, the speaker declared.

"I am frequently asked," he continued, "why Diaz was overthrown by Madero. Diaz was growing old and turned much of his work over to aids who were not as patriotic as he and who grew rich and were hated by the people. The unequal distribution of land was another element that caused unrest."

Speaking of the present revolution, Congressman Slayden said: "The only murderer I know of who is accorded respect is this mercenary ruffian, the gunman who hires himself out to kill a man he never saw." The audience thought he referred to Villa.

He said the civil wars in Mexico are characterized by the utmost brutality. I have been told, he continued; that the federals, when there were any, were the only soldiers who would not kill people for the mere pleasure of seeing them die. That can't be said of any other band or clique, he added. They have a mad desire to destroy and kill, the speaker said, even damaging unoffending coal mines.

Congressman Slayden said he did not have the privilege of knowing Carranza, but that he understood he was a man very much out of place on a horse or in a military camp.

He described Villa as the most prominent and aggressive figure which has developed. He called attention to the fact that Villa was not his right name; that it had been changed on account of an episode in his early life. Mr. Slayden said Villa was opposed to monopoly, especially ly to the government's monopoly on the making of money, and that his liberty was taken from him when he attempted to compete with the government. While in jail, the congressman said, Villa learned to write.

The speaker and Villa headed the faction in the north. He said Villa recently made his barber a general because he was an expert at his trade. Congressman Slayden said there were as many women as men in the armies of Mexico. He declared that they do all the foraging because there is no commissary department and that they are said to be responsible for much of the arson that is committed. He added that the women do everything but wash, and no one does that.

Congressman Slayden was sent to the chautauqua by the Carnegie Peace Foundation and is not a regular chautauqua attraction.

FORMER CARTHAGE MAN BACK HERE

Lee Nixon, After Sixteen Years in U. S. Government Service in Porto Rico, is Retired.

POSTMASTER AT SAN JUAN

Lee Nixon, formerly of Carthage and one time city clerk of Indianapolis who has been in the United States government service for the last sixteen years, is back in Indiana for an indefinite stay. He is well known in Rush county where he has many friends. At present Mr. Nixon is making his home with his brother, C. O. Nixon, in Indianapolis.

He served as postmaster at San Juan for nearly three years. He is a Republican, and the Democratic administration and the congress refused to confirm his appointment. So he held on without a commission until a short time ago, when E. W. Keith, of Tennessee, was appointed postmaster, and Nixon thus was retired. He turned the postoffice over to Keith in June and in July Nixon started for the states.

MR. JITNEY NOT OUT OF WOODS

He Has to Meet up With Lot of Obstacles Before he Has Freedom of the Streets.

PLANS OF MANY CITIES

Methods of Regulations Are Being Considered Since Commission Has Made Ruling.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 6.—Mr. Jitney who has escaped death or serious injury twice is not yet out of the woods in Indiana. Today he is fighting in every city where he has gained a foothold against a growing demand that he be licensed, bonded and regulated out of exist.

Thus far the fight against jitney bus has developed into an excellent exhibition of "passing the buck." No state authority is willing to assume the responsibility of regulating the nicker-a-ride auto which has been hailed on one side as a "craze" and on the other as a safeguard against the "powerful traction interests."

The legislature passed the buck to the public service commission and the public service commission, by its refusal last week to regulate the jitney, passed the buck to each individual city.

The fight is all ready to begin in a dozen cities which were only waiting the decision of the commission before they attempted to push ordinances directed at the innovation in common carriers.

Terre Haute will witness a fight in its city council for and against jitney bus regulation. Kokomo will see a similar fight. Warsaw, it is reported, will pass an ordinance requiring a license of $15 a year and an indemnity bond of $2,000. Richmond announced recently that if the commission did not regulate the jitney an ordinance would be presented to the council.

Closely following the commission's decision, the traction interests in Kokomo decided to meet the jitneys at their own game. On streets tapping sections not served by street cars, the company will use jitney busses of its own.

Indianapolis probably is the least affected of any of the large cities of the state by the jitneys.

DEFENCES ARE TO BE DISCUSSED

Military Preparedness Will be Topic at Annual Conference of Governors in Boston.

MANY TO BE IN DISCUSSION
Mexican Situation and European War Causes Governors to Ponder State's Responsibilities.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 6.—Military preparedness for national defense is to be discussed by the governors of the various states at the annual conference of governors to be held in Boston, August 24, 25 and 26, according to the program announced today by M. C. Riley, secretary of the Governors' Conference. While this conference includes in its membership the governors and former governors of the 48 states, the Boston meeting is to have added significance by reason of the fact that adjutant generals of many states also will attend and participate in the discussion of plans for increasing the size and increasing the efficiency of the militia of the states as part of the national defense.

The discussion is to be opened by Governor James P. Fielder of New Jersey who will read a paper on "The Relation of the State to the National Defense."

Others who will participate in the discussion are Governors Charles S. Whitman of New York, Frank B. Willis of Ohio, Edward F. Dumble of Illinois, Ernest Lister of Washington, W. S. Hammond of Minnesota, the former governors Wm. Hodges Mann of Virginia, and Elias M. Ammons of Colorado.

"The Mexican situation and the European war doubtless have caused governors of many states to ponder their own and their state's responsibilities in relation to military preparedness," said Secretary Riley. "All the forty-eight governors were consulted in the preparation of the program for the coming conference. Practically all asked that some phase of the efficiency of our citizen soldiery be discussed; thus disclosing a keen interest on the part of the states in the problem now confronting the nation—an interest so keen as to amount to a recognition by the states of a degree of responsibility."

"Utterances of many public men, magazine articles and the current news carried by the daily press all indicate that there is an increasing conviction that Americans, as individuals and as a nation, should be capable of acting in self-defense. Many of the governors feel that the time is ripe for some uniformity of action in co-operation with the national government for providing an adequate program for improving the national defense. This problem is no longer the simple one that it was 100 years ago. Now, more than ever before, there is a general acceptance of the doctrine that every American boy should receive training which will equip him to become an efficient unit in the nation's defense. This is not a new doctrine, but is merely emphasized at this time by the awful spectacle of all Europe engaged in war. Readiness on the part of the citizen to serve his country clearly was contemplated by the constitution, which provides that Congress may call forth the citizens to serve as militia to quell insurrection and repel invasion. Many governors feel that if every young man is subject under the law to be called upon for military duty, then it is important that such training should be provided as will fit young men to perform that service well."

Woman Manager Gives all of 2500 Employees Chance at Stock

New York, Aug. 6.—A woman who doesn't believe in roof gardens and rest rooms, free medicine, free umbrellas for rainy days and all that sort of thing for employees, is the head of a manufacturing concern in this city that is making an immense amount of money. Very evidently she does not care for Charity, as spelled with a capital "C" and yet she has the respect and liking of the concern's 2500 employees to a most remarkable degree. She is not giving them charity or philanthropy or uplift—she is giving them the whole plant, or, at least, she is enabling them to earn the title to it.

The woman is Mrs. James F. Warbasse, of Brooklyn, head of the Dennison Manufacturing company. Also she is wife, mother and mistress of a happy home. To her husband and her six children she gives a great part of the credit for the system being worked out by the manufacturing company. They believe with her, she says, that acquiring enormous wealth and then giving some of it back to the world in the form of uplift is as wrong as wrong can be.

Her idea is that the way to wipe out the world's suffering and want, the way to remove "industrial unrest," is to have all large enterprises administered at the point of production. This will be literally true of the Dennison company, she says, when the employees have taken up $100,000 worth of stock.

"I should class myself as a parasite if it were not for my family," Mrs. Warbasse told Zoe Beckley, of the Evening Mail, when the latter hunted her up at her Brooklyn residence.

"My children are what justify my existence. They are my only creative production. If I simply lived here in Brooklyn, idle and childless, visiting the Dennison factories at South Framingham twice a year, I should have no right on earth to any profits from those factories."

Under the plan being worked out at the Dennison Company, only employees who have salaries of $1,200 a year and over have voting power as to the administration of the business, although all employees have a chance to own stock—"to share in the industrial partnership," as Mrs. Warbasse puts it.

"This," says she, hoisting an insistent baby Warbasse into her lap, "is not nearly radical enough for me. My conception of industrial partnership is to allow every worker a voice as to salaries, hours, conditions, environment, production and general running of the business."

"Nothing short of that fulfills my ideal. I am hoping to have this change made by Harry Dennison and the others who are there on the ground, as soon as possible."

This phrase "on the ground" represents to Mrs. Warbasse the crux of the industrial problem.

"Absentee ownership," says she, "is the curse of civilization. The coal mines of far away states are administered from Wall street. This is preposterous. The management must be by the workers themselves at the point of production. I cannot make that emphatic enough."

"There is no other way of solving the problems of the business. No one but the workers themselves should say what is best for them. Thus they will learn to think. Thus their entire interest and enthusiasm for work will be utilized for themselves as well as for the business. They should suggest their own rewards and punishments, just as I often ask my children how to treat disobedience or reward merit."

"Welfare work, so called, should not be in the hands of a few high-salaried men. The enormous incomes of capitalists are all wrong in principle anyhow. They cannot justify their wealth by gifts of colleges and cash for palliative measures. There should be no necessity for palliative measures."

"If capitalists limited their incomes to amounts which would provide them good houses, good rainment, good food and good education for their children, leaving the rest of the profit to the disposition of those who produce it, the misery of the world would be wiped out, if you have nothing to do with the administration of your properties, except to collect the income, you have no right to that income!"

"When Mr. Rockefeller was appealed to at the time of the Denver riots he refused to accept any responsibility. No blame attached to him, he said, because he was not on the ground and had nothing to do with the causes of the revolt. Again I say that the man who tries to escape blame on the ground that he had no direct administrative influence over his properties should also escape the benefits."

"The employee-ownership plan of Dennison Manufacturing Company has not escaped criticism. A Philadelphia newspaper recently called it the dream of a few idealistic young people. Successful business enterprises, it was pointed out, were not run by workmen, but by superior minds, captains of industry, men of broad vision and marked ability."

To this Mrs. Warbasse replies simply. "The majority of those who head large businesses have worked themselves from the bottom upwards. These make the best 'captains.'"

GERMANS CAPTURE ANOTHER FORTRESS

Official Dispatches Say Ivangorod Has Fallen, Earlier Statements Having Indicated This

FOOD SUPPLIES WITHDRAWN

(By United Press.) Vienna, (Via Berlin), Aug. 6.—The Russian fortress of Ivangorod fifty miles southeast of Warsaw has been captured by the Austro-Germans, it was officially announced here today. The allied troops began entering the fortress on Tuesday.

An official statement at Petrograd early today indicated that the Russians were about to surrender Ivangorod. The Russian war office said all food supplies had been withdrawn from the fortress because it was realized the brick walls could not withstand the battering of modern guns. The Petrograd statement, however, contradicts the Vienna claim that the fortress was captured on Tuesday. Petrograd declared that the Russians retired from the Ivangorod on the left bank Wednesday after blowing up the bridges and establishing themselves on the right bank. The city and main fortress of Ivangorod lie on the right bank.

ENGLISH DRIVE NOT POSSIBLE

Kitchener's Army Will Not be Able to Take Offensive For at Least One Year.

MAY FORCE DARDANELLES

British Troops Not in Service Number Less Than 600,000—Poor Showing Thus Far.

(U. P. Staff Correspondent.) Copenhagen, July 22 (By Mail to New York)—England will not be able to use Kitchener's army for an offensive drive against the Germans this summer, and probably not in the autumn. If the coming winter is severe enough to interfere with effective military operations there may be no major English attempt to drive the Germans back to their own frontier until next spring—one year later. In the meantime, peace may come, and the war may end without the full strength of the British empire having a chance to test itself against the Germans.

This information reached the United Press from sources in close touch with inner conditions both in England and at the front. The United Press also learns that the British munitions situation is much more serious than is generally known, and that peace is nearer than is publicly acknowledged. British statesmen realize the empire's prestige has suffered severely because of the small part England's army has been able to play in the continental fighting. This is the principal reason why England will not talk about terms of peace at the present time. Once Great Britain's offensive power is rehabilitated, England will not be averse to considering overtures for ending the war.

the Gallipoli campaign to a triumphant conclusion. The forcing of the Dardanelles would be chiefly a British victory and Constantinople's fall would restore England's prestige.

The Gallipoli operations, therefore are more important than the campaign in France and Belgium insofar as their bearing on peace is concerned. Sir Ian Hamilton's task is becoming noticeable lighter after each assault against the Turkish positions and quarters not given to baseless optimism believe that the fortifications guarding the Dardanelles narrows may be subdued from the land side by next autumn and possibly before.

The necessity for hammering away at the Turks is one reason why the English army in Flanders is so short of ammunition. The United Press is able to state that the lack of ammunition is not the sole source of worry to Sir John French. Not only has the British war office failed to supply sufficient shells for the troops at the front, but also it has neglected to furnish an adequate number of machine guns.

The British army on the continent is now unable to create a diversion favorable to the Russians because Sir John French fears a depletion of his ammunition in a futile drive might later permit the Germans to get through the British lines to Calais. Practically all the ammunition the British possess must be husbanded for defensive use on this account.

The United Press learns that no more than 600,000 British troops are at the front in Western Europe, on the Gallipoli peninsula and in Egypt. Less than 500,000 of these are in active service in France and Belgium. It will be impossible, even for this comparatively small force, under Sir John French's command to be effectively used until England can obtain more rapid firers. England is not so busy making the much needed guns as she is in turning out the machinery with which the guns must later be manufactured. The dearth of proper machinery is still far from having been overcome by the British government and it will be a considerable time before the war factories are properly equipped to begin relieving the gun stringency at the front.

Germany does not have the output of her armaments in this manner to anything like the same extent as does England. The British fleet has fired an enormous quantity of shells during the Dardanelles operations alone which have to be replaced; and since the war began, England's newly built super-dreadnaughts have made great demands for large calibre shells, the most difficult of all to manufacture. One of the reasons why the British army is so short of shells is the vital necessity for England to keep her fleet lavishly supplied with munition as the first principle of her self preservation.

The war is costing England $15,000,000 a day. Each month of the war adds $20,000,000 in interest charges, that must be raised annually hereafter by increased taxation. If the national debt continues to pile up, and, if, after months of waiting the accumulated shells fail to drive the Germans more than a few miles back toward their own territory will the effort be worth the cost?

British statesmen are beginning to ask themselves this question without finding a satisfactory answer. The same question probably will soon be raised among the people at large. Then when British public opinion begins to suspect the doubtful value of an interminable $15,000,000 a day war, a compromise peace will only be delayed if the British army requires more time to regain the world's respect.

TODAY'S ODDER STORY
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 6.—Here is the latest Ford story. During a "war scare" in this country, certain officers of the Michigan National Guard were ordered to locate emergency supplies. One called on Ford and asked if he could supply the chassis for a large number of ambulances. "Yes" Ford replied, "if you don't want too many. I could supply 1,000 a day. But we would have to give due notice of your needs." "How much time would you want?" queried the officer, bracing himself for a demand of several months. "Well," Ford replied thoughtfully, "You ought to let us know not later than 4 o'clock of the day before deliveries were to start."
